Mayor's Race: Detroiters To Make Choice - Black, White

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit voters went to the polls in what appeared to be record numbers, despite a steady rain, to choose between a white lawyer and a black accountant for mayor of the nation's fifth largest city.

The outcome of the election was rated a tossup between Richard Austin, a 56-year-old Negro who is Wayne County's auditor and Wayne county Sheriff Roman Gribbe, 43.

City elections director John A. Smith said the intense public interest in the race would probably bring out about 515,000 or 60 per cent of the city's 740,619 registered voters.

At 10 a.m. city election officials estimated that 20,770 persons had voted, compared with 20,340 at the same hour in the 1966 municipal elections.

The final poll of The Detroit News showed Austin leading, although residents polled as "undecided" were expected to cast a telling 18 per cent of the total vote. Both candidates staged extensive get-out-the-vote campaigns today to pull in the undecided.

Austin was favored by 42 per cent in the News poll, conducted by Martin Opinion Research, Inc., while Gribbe had 39 per cent and Councilwoman Mary Beck, a write-in candidate who finished No. 3 in the primary, was favored by 1 per cent.

Both candidates have been judged "outstanding" by the city's civic organizations and newspapers although the morning Free Press has endorsed Austin and the evening News, Gribbe.

Michigan's checkered racial history makes it difficult to draw any conclusions from the election, regardless of who wins.

Israel Issues Stem Warning To Lebanese

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli officials warned Lebanon today to expect speedy retaliation for any Arab guerrilla attacks launched from Lebanese soil as a result of the new agreement between the Lebanese government and guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat.

Officials said Israel will not tolerate increased terrorism along its northern border as a result of the agreement announced in Cairo Monday night. Arafat and Gen. Emil Bustani, the Lebanese army commander, said in a communique that they had agreed on all issues. Reliable sources said the communique would be allowed to operate freely in some parts of Lebanon.

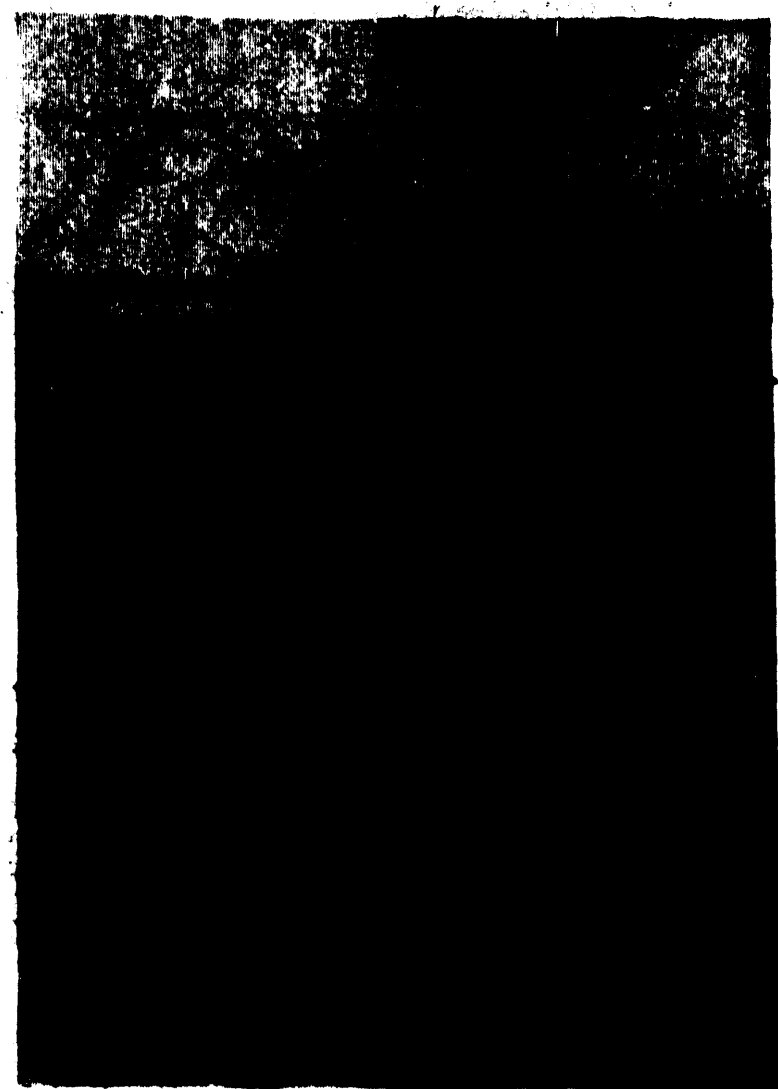

Sources in Jerusalem said following top-level meetings Monday night, the Israeli government conveyed its views to various other governments for them to transmit to the Lebanese.

For the first time since the Lebanese army and the Arab commandos began fighting two weeks ago, an attack from Lebanon against Israel was reported. The Israeli military command said one rocket was fired across the border early today and that it damaged one wall of a building in a border settlement in Upper Galilee and broke several windows. There were no casualties.

Lindsay Seen As Winner In Off-Year Poll

By The Associated Press
New Yorkers elect a mayor today, with disowned Republican John V. Lindsay heavily favored to win the re-election which once seemed beyond his reach. GOP challengers seek to capture the governorships of Virginia and New Jersey, where Democrats now rule.

Feature Races
These are the feature races in off-year elections which could signal the mood of the voter in cities dismayed by rising crime rates and racial tensions, and in two states where President Nixon intervened personally for the Republican campaigners.

Desegregation Plans On Move

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Legal machinery is whirling into action for quick compliance with the Supreme Court's no-delay ruling on school desegregation. But it might be weeks—even months—before significant effects are felt in Dixie.

"We've worked all weekend preparing papers for filing in the courts," said Jack Greenberg, director of the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund which won the landmark ruling last week.

Greenberg, commanding a battery of lawyers in the South, said by telephone from his New York office that he thought the new decision would have heavy impact if applied to approximately 300 Southern cases in which the fund is involved.

Fund lawyers in Atlanta filed a motion Monday seeking immediate desegregation of all Georgia schools.

But whether there will be significant changes across the South this school term is uncertain. For one thing, the volume of legal paper work means, Greenberg said, that it will take two weeks or more to file motions in even one-half the fund's cases. And for another thing, court cases take time.

Currently, an Associated Press survey indicates, about 30 per cent of the black pupils in 11 Southern states are attending schools with white children this term. Last term the figure was up to 20 per cent by federal officials.

The 25 Mississippi school districts already involved in the Supreme Court ruling now face a deadline of Wednesday for submitting plans to "desegregate" and submit systems. In several other states, Greenberg's lawyers are preparing to file desegregation orders, or already have filed them.

peace move undoubtedly would have proven a boon to Republicans in the two states electing governors.

Nixon's restatement of administration policy is unlikely to be a major election day factor, although the nationwide appearance itself could prove of some benefit to Virginia Linwood Bohlen and New Jersey's William T. Cahill, the Republicans for whom he campaigned.

William C. Battle, the son of a former governor and once U.S. ambassador to Australia, is the Democratic nominee in Virginia, carrying the credentials of a party which has held the governorship there for 85 years.

Personal Feud

In New Jersey, former Democratic Gov. Robert B. Meyner has criticized Nixon policies, including those in Vietnam, but the war issue has not caught on, and the campaign has been largely one of personal invective between the candidates.

Cahill is a six-term congressman seeking to win for the GOP the last major industrial state still governed by a Democrat.

The Democratic incumbents in Virginia and New Jersey were by state law ineligible for re-election. Republicans now control 20 of the nation's state houses.

Post Corp. Tells Of Stock Split; WLUC Is Member

APPLETON, Wis. (AP)—Post Corporation's board of directors voted a one-for-five stock split Monday to be effected in the form of a 20 per cent stock dividend, payable Dec. 31 to shareholders of record at close of business Dec. 15.

The directors at a special meeting also announced their intention of doubling the annual cash dividend rate from eight cents to 16 cents per share (from two cents to four cents per quarter) in 1970.

V. I. Minahan, Post Corporation president, said the board took the actions after noting earnings for the first nine months of 1969 were $487,135, a 25 per cent increase over the $390,128 reported for the comparable period last year. Per share earnings were 52 cents compared with 74 cents reported a year earlier.

Post Corporation publishes newspapers in Appleton, Neenah-Menasha, West Bend and West Allis, Wis., operates television stations in Green Bay and Eau Claire, Wis., Marquette, Mich., and Ottumwa, Iowa, and radio stations in Wausau, Wis., Eau Claire and Ottumwa. # Nixon Tells Of Secret Withdrawal Timetable

Success Foreseen In Plan For Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says he has worked out with South Vietnam "an orderly scheduled timetable" for withdrawal of all U. S. ground combat troops from Vietnam but may have to revise it if Hanoi "significantly" escalates the war.

"I have chosen a plan for peace," Nixon told a national television audience Monday night. "I believe it will succeed."

"If it does succeed, what the critics say now will not matter. If it does not succeed, anything I say then will not matter."

He disclosed he had undertaken several secret contacts with North Vietnam to try to break the stalemate in the Paris peace talks.

These included a personal letter to the late Ho Chi Minh in which he urged "an early resolution of this tragic war." But Ho replied, shortly before his death Sept. 3, with a demand for settlement on his terms, and this initiative, like all the others, failed.

Against this background, Nixon, after reviewing the history of the war, focused his speech on turning the conflict over to the South Vietnamese, thus gradually disengaging American ground combat forces until all can be brought home.

For this plan he asked support, particularly the support of "the great silent majority of my fellow Americans."

The speech, as White House officials noted, contained no spectacular new proposals, and his critics were quick to jump on this point. Senator Albert Gore, D-Tenn., called for early hearings on the war by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee—hearings which had been deferred pending the speech.

But Republican leaders and some Democrats faulted Nixon's presentation as pointing the way toward peace. And presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the White House switchboard was jammed with calls praising the speech.

Nixon said the failure to make any progress in the peace talks was entirely the fault of the enemy, and he specified how the war had nevertheless been scaled down on both sides.

As to the future, Nixon said: "We have adopted a plan which we have worked out in cooperation with the South Vietnamese for the complete withdrawal of all U.S. ground combat forces and their replacement by South Vietnamese forces on an orderly scheduled timetable. . . . As South Vietnamese forces become stronger, the rate of American withdrawal will become greater."

No Dates Mentioned
Nixon did not detail either the dates in his timetable or the total of troops to be brought home. Administration officials say the withdrawal rate will go up in 1970, and speculation is that pull backs during the year may total 175,000 or more. If there are no upsets.

Nixon argued his plan had to remain secret because he must adjust it to conditions in South Vietnam and possible progress at Paris. He said the progress in training South Vietnamese troops plus a decline in enemy infiltration and offensive action had enabled him to make a "more optimistic" withdrawal schedule now than he made last June.

Warning Issued
At the same time he declared that "if the level of enemy activity significantly increases we might have to adjust our timetable accordingly." And in words specifically directed to Hanoi he issued this warning:

"If I conclude that increased enemy action jeopardizes our remaining forces in Vietnam, I shall not hesitate to take strong and effective measures to deal with that situation."

Throughout the speech—his first major address on Vietnam since May 14—Nixon appealed for support by the American people for the course he is following.

Support Sought
Since he conceded that "some of my fellow citizens disagree with the plan for peace I have chosen," his main effort evidently was to reinforce the tee hearings on the war deferred last month by chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., pending Nixon's speech Monday night.

Republican leaders, joined by some Democrats, hailed Nixon's report as candid and pointing the way towards peace. They urged Americans to write or wire their support of the President's course to the White House.

And Ronald L. Ziegler, the chief executive's press secretary, reported White House switchboards were jammed with calls praising the President's speech. "We've never had a response like this to a presidential address," he said.

Criticism of Nixon came from Democratic Sens. Gore, George S. McGovern of South Dakota, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Alan Cranston of California and Republican Jacob K. Javits of New York.

"There is no choice now but for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee constructively to try to contribute to the finding of a policy for peace," Gore said.

Fulbright, however, deferred comment pending a study of Nixon's text.

McGovern accused Nixon of pursuing the "same tired old discredited policy we have followed to the death of 40,000 young Americans," Muskie said Nixon's plan "leaves the decision as to American withdrawal in Saigon and Hanoi rather than in Washington."

In Minneapolis, former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said he was disappointed Nixon announced no new troop withdrawals and failed to call for a cease-fire.

Javits said "The President's statement, as eloquent and moving as it was, hasn't changed anything. It can only be characterized as a disappointment."

But other Republicans praised the President in an outpouring of similarly worded statements.

Enemy Attacks Increase Prior To Nixon Speech

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops launched their heaviest ground attacks in two months Tuesday, some 12 hours before President Nixon said that a "significant" increase in enemy activity might force him to stretch out his timetable for withdrawal of U.S. troops.

However, an official U.S. source said the current upsurge in enemy attacks, which began last weekend in the central highlands, didn't appear to be sufficient to slow the withdrawal program.

U.S. and South Vietnamese headquarters reported at least 45 enemy rocket and mortar attacks during the night, and infantry assaults on four American bases north of Saigon, an American night bivouac in the central highlands, and two South Vietnamese positions in the southern central highlands.

The enemy lost heavily in the ground attacks, with the allied commands claiming 180 killed, while allied casualties were four Americans and five South Vietnamese killed, 61 Americans and 12 South Vietnamese wounded, plus 23 Americans wounded in the shelling. The Americans captured seven North Vietnamese in the fighting north of Saigon.

"I think what the President is talking about is whether or not they launch something that would be relatively large scale," said the U.S. source. "We've said all along we anticipated that in the immediate future they would continue the campaign idea, a low level of action with periodic peaks, as opposed to a sustained offensive. I think President Nixon is thinking in those terms."

The attacks were the heaviest since the night of Sept. 5-6, when the enemy shelled more than 100 bases and towns and launched several ground attacks. This was during the final "highpoint" of the enemy's fall campaign.

Since he conceded that "some of my fellow citizens disagree with the plan for peace I have chosen," his main effort evidently was to reinforce the

American GIs Differ On Monday Talk Views

SAIGON (AP) — American GIs registered varying degrees of approval and disappointment following President Nixon's speech on the Vietnam war. Initial South Vietnamese reaction was generally favorable.

"I had expected him to announce another withdrawal," said Spec. 4 Jim Talley, 22, of Newnan, Ga. The 25th Division Infantryman said he was "in a way disappointed" but "I'm glad he stated his position. Now we know where he stands."

Opposed To War
Another 25th Division soldier, Pfc. Tom Bozzuto, 22, of Waterbury, Conn., said he still opposed the war, but Nixon made "one of the best delivered speeches I've ever heard."

But I think it's pretty much the same we've been getting. I don't believe the majority of the American people have the patience to wait until the South Vietnamese supposedly are capable of taking over."

"I was not disappointed," said Capt. John Kelly, 35, Watertown, Mass., a member of the 1st Infantry Division at Di An, north of Saigon. "I didn't expect any earth-shaking announcement. I didn't think he should give a withdrawal schedule. This would be aid and comfort to the enemy."

Support Plan Hailed
Marine 2nd Lt. Keith McConnell of Lorain, Ohio, said he was glad to hear the President "ask for support from the middle." "The only thing you've heard anything from have been the antiwar people and the military-industrial complex," he said.

President Nguyen Van Thieu had no immediate comment on the speech. But White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the administration had "full and complete consultation" with the South Vietnamese government on the speech and the latter was "in agreement with its contents."

Some Disappointment
There was some disappointment among political opponents of Thieu who had hoped Nixon would call for speedier action on such programs as land reform. But in general there was support and acceptance for the speech in Saigon political circles.

"We particularly welcomed President Nixon's emphasis that troop withdrawals must be made in proportion to the strengthening of the Vietnamese armed forces," said lawyer Tran Van Tuyen, member of an old-line party that nominally supports the government.

A member of the opposition forces said the speech would strengthen the Thieu government internally.

By The Associated Press
Michigan's Republican U.S. senator and governor both had words of praise for President Nixon's Monday night address to the nation of Vietnam.

"We have witnessed an act of political courage, an address that promises to be a turning point in history," said Senate Minority Whip Robert Griffin, R-Mich.

"As commander-in-chief, President Nixon has charted a course that will bring peace to Southeast Asia. It is clear that we can reach that goal sooner by supporting the President's firm resolve."

He put the enemy on notice that belligerence and intransigence will gain him nothing," Griffin added. "I support the President's plan for ending the war. I join in his call for unity as the best hope for a lasting peace."

Gov. William G. Milliken was more restrained in his comments. "I was discouraged by the President's report on the lack of diplomatic progress and lack of response from Hanoi to what I believe is a determined and sincere attempt by the President to end the war and achieve a just and honorable peace," Milliken said.

"I was encouraged to hear that he has adopted a specific plan for the complete withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Vietnam. I'm sure that all Americans, whether they have been silent or noisy on this vital issue, want to see such a plan implemented."

Navy Seeks Six
Entombed Men

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — Two Navy rescue craft sped today toward a spot in the Atlantic Ocean where a missing tugboat may lie on the bottom with its crew of six trapped alive.

"It's a very new vessel and is probably intact if it did go down," said Lt. Howard Copeland, a spokesman for the Coast Guard at Portsmouth, Va. "The chances of it being watertight are very good."

The tug, the Marjorie McAllister, was last heard from Sunday, when she radioed that she was having electrical trouble and taking water in 20-foot seas and 50-knot winds.

The Coast Guard cutter Chilula found wreckage and a rubber lifeboat Monday in an off slick six miles from the tug's last reported position, 12 miles southwest of Cape Lookout, N.C.

Water at that point is 112 feet deep, which Copeland said is a "good depth for diving work."

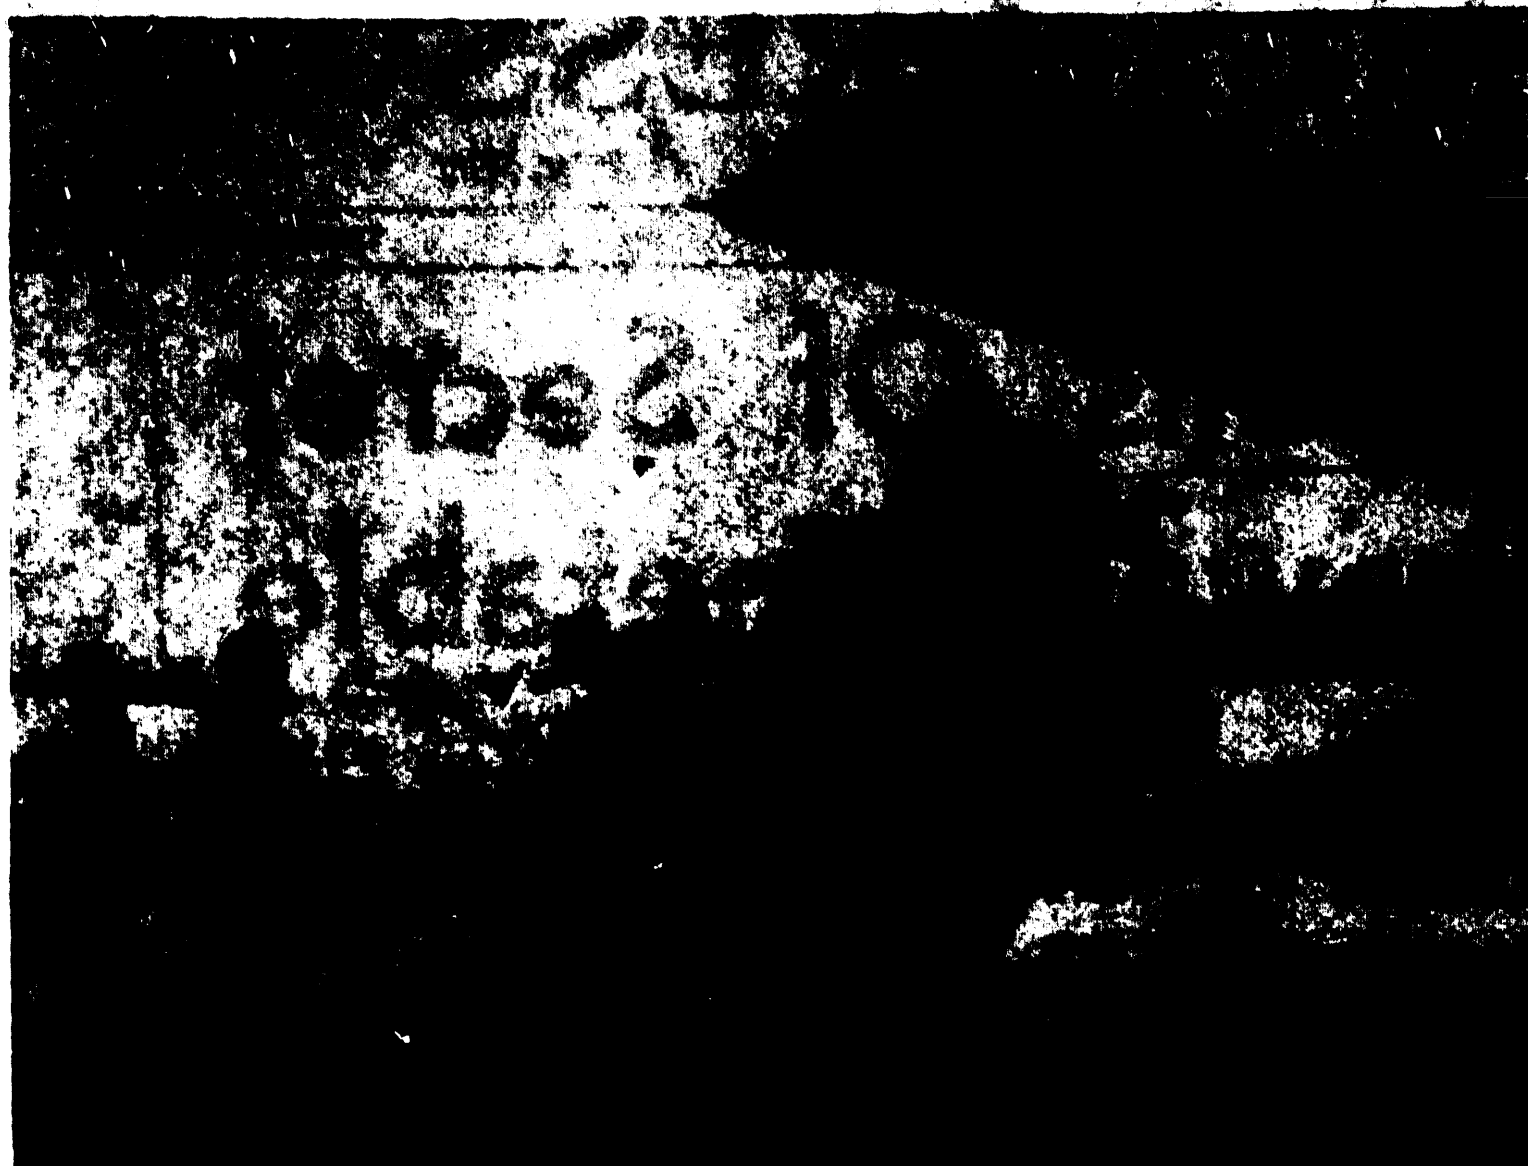

The Navy rescue vessels were the salvage boat Recovery, which carries divers and has gear capable of raising and refloating the tug, and a sonar-equipped minesweeper to help find the missing ship.

A spokesman for McAllister Brothers Inc. of New York, owner of the tug, said there was "a faint hope the vessel has not sunk."

New Airline Debuts Successfully

BY DAVE ANDREWS

It was cool and overcast in Escanaba and even worse—cool and soupy and raining—in Lansing, but the nifty flying weather didn't seem to bother Trans-Michigan Airlines in the least.

Two planeloads of Upper Peninsulaans were flown to Lansing for a luncheon as Trans-Michigan inaugurated service to Escanaba and Marquette airports.

The airline, based at Lansing, will fly two round-trip flights daily connecting Marquette and Escanaba in the Upper Peninsula with Traverse City, Lansing and Detroit in lower Michigan, reestablishing the "aerial bridge" between the two peninsulas.

James Ramsey, director of the Michigan Aeronautics Commission speaking for Gov. William Milliken who was unable to attend the luncheon program, said the governor viewed the service as a stimulus to the Upper Peninsula economy.

"Out On A Limb"

"X Trans Michigan Airlines"

is successful in its plans, travel between our two peninsulas will be facilitated and we will see another very helpful step taken for stimulation of the Upper Peninsula economy," he said.

"I am happy to wish Trans Michigan all good fortune as the airline begins another service bringing Michigan residents closer together."

J. T. Brophy, Trans Michigan vice president, said the airline started service in Lower Michigan in April and now the officers of the company have "gone out on a limb" to serve the Upper Peninsula.

He said Trans Michigan didn't expect to make a profit from Upper Peninsula service the first year, but hoped eventually the airline could increase its passenger loads to near capacity.

Mission To Serve Brophy said Trans Michigan is a "third level" airline and that its "prime mission is to provide speedy, economical, frequent service to communities to connect them with the transportation hubs" of the state.

Making the flights Monday from Escanaba were: Escanaba—Mayor Cecil Chase; Arne Maki, vice president and trust officer, First National Bank & Trust Co.; City Manager George Harvey; Forrest Hansel, executive vice president, State Bank of Escanaba; Fred Schmitt, World Wide Travel Service, Escanaba; Roger Murray, engineer, Michigan Highway Dept.; Harold Vanlerberghe, member of Delta County Board of Supervisors; David Farrand, industrial development specialist for UPICAP; Thomas Strabel, president of Escanaba Chamber of Commerce; James Pinar, news director, WDBC; David Pinozek, manager, WLST; David Andrews, Editor, Escanaba Daily Press;

Gladstone—Mayor Arne Anderson; Ronald Watson, editor and publisher, Delta Reporter.

Manistique—Frank Hoholik, president, Manistique Pulp & Paper Co.; Fred H. Hahn, president, First National Bank; David Kelly, manager, WITQ; Charles Rustecki, Manistique Tool & Mfg. Co.

Offer Congratulations Among those introduced at the luncheon were Dr. Claude Bosworth, Northern Michigan University; Raymond Cleveland, former U. S. Congressman; B. J. Hayner, president of Trans Michigan; Darwin McKenzie, executive vice president of Trans Michigan; and Larry Bostowe, vice president of Trans Michigan.

Mayor Chase, Marquette Mayor Pro Tem Lloyd Price and Mayor Anderson each offered congratulations to the airline, as did Rep. Dominick Jacobetti (D-Negaunee).

Kiwanians Told Of 4-H Service

The Escanaba Kiwanis Club had as its guests Monday noon the 4-H leaders of Delta County and 4-H Youth Leader Donald Brown. Also attending was Miss Ingrid Tervonen, Delta County 4-H Extension home economist.

Brown, formerly youth leader for Dickinson and Iron Counties, introduced James Schultz, who will be the new youth leader for the Marquette-Alger County area.

Brown said the first 4-H programs were designed to teach the adults, through the children, better ways of farming, especially by using controlled feeding programs and better record keeping for greater profits. 4-H now deals directly with youth itself, and not entirely on the rural scene. Brown himself has never lived on a farm, nor has he ever worked on one.

One important factor of 4-H is to give teenagers the chance to accept their role in society. In this respect, Brown introduced Miss Mary Jo DeKeyser of Gladstone, who with 11 other teenagers, conducted the summer camp this year for 4-H'ers. The group planned all the activities and programs for the camp, and the only time adult assistance was interjected was when and if the activities seemed to be dangerous, Brown said.

Miss DeKeyser then told of her 4-H experiences on a recent trip to Washington, D. C. Besides interviewing officials of the Department of Agriculture, the group visited several of the national buildings, Arlington Cemetery, and spoke with Congressman Philip Ruppe. More than 5,000 4-H clubbers attend the citizenship conference at the nation's capital, Miss DeKeyser said.

Brown introduced Mrs. Helen Walker of Gladstone, a member of the 4-H Council. Their duties include decision making for the area's various groups. Mrs. Walker thanked the Kiwanians for their active interest in 4-H work, and especially their acknowledgment of efforts by the 4-H leaders in honoring them at the dinner. This is a tremendous spirit lifer, Mrs. Walker continued, and helps to encourage the leaders.

Brown said that all leaders are volunteers, and that he was gratified to be able to work with these fine people. He also reported that many new and different projects are being offered, that they now number more than 100, and that 4-H is flourishing in both city and rural areas, and is international in scope.

Program chairman for the day was Evans Lutz, who arranged and introduced the program.

Kidnap Story Involving U.P. Escapees Told

CHICAGO (AP) — A Sheboygan, Wis., sheriff's deputy told a U.S. District Court judge Monday of his kidnaping by three inmates in their escape from jail in July.

The men, William K. Edinger, 34, of Flint; Donald McBride, 19, of Monroe; and Jerry M. O'Day, 23, of Battle Creek, pleaded guilty to a charge of kidnaping Charles Pierce, 28, the deputy.

Pierce's testimony was given during a pre-sentencing hearing ordered by Judge Richard B. Austin to establish whether the kidnaping was aggravated by any mistreatment.

The judge said he would sentence them Tuesday.

The three men escaped from the Marquette state prison farm in July. They were recaptured in Sheboygan.

Pierce said Edinger jumped him and struck him with the handle of a meat grinder as he went to investigate noises in the tier where the men were kept.

Edinger ordered Pierce to release O'Day and McBride and the three took Pierce down a fire escape with them, he related, when they could not find a place to lock him.

Pierce said he was unarmed. Pierce said he was told by his captors they would not hesitate "to do it," if he did not cooperate with them. He said he understood this to mean they would kill him. He testified that Edinger reassured him several times that he would not be harmed, if he waited for them to release him.

The four-state flight ended at Sycamore, Ill., just after the group recrossed the Mississippi River at Dubuque, Iowa, in a stolen car.

Success Foreseen In Plan For Peace

backing he has and win any additional support possible.

Nixon's speech was timed approximately to the anniversary of the date—Nov. 1, 1968—when President Lyndon B. Johnson stopped all bombing of North Vietnam under an agreement to include South Vietnam and the Viet Cong in the Paris talks along with the U.S. and North Vietnam.

But the speech came midway between two peace demonstrations—one held in mid-October and one scheduled for mid-November. It also came after calls in Congress for fixing a deadline on removal of all U.S. troops from Vietnam and for trying to institute a cease-fire.

Two Phases Noted
Aides said that Nixon's program has two phases. The first phase they described as that of the timetable for removal of combat forces; the second phase would provide for removal of the rest—and air and supply and other support troops.

Nixon also said that soon after his election he made "two private offers for a rapid, comprehensive settlement" through an individual "who is directly in contact on a personal basis with the leaders of North Vietnam." He declared Hanoi's reply "called in effect for our surrender before negotiations."

Further, Nixon reported he and other officials had talked with Soviet representatives—presumably Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin—to get Soviet help in breaking out of the deadlock at Paris. They also talked with representatives of other governments with diplomats in Hanoi.

Remains Negative
"None of these initiatives," Nixon said, "have to date produced results."

Toward the end of the speech, Nixon addressed "the young people of this nation." He said he wanted peace as much as they did but to achieve it in a way which increases the chance that the young brothers and the sons of the men now fighting in Vietnam "will not have to fight in another Vietnam some place in the world."

Dangerous Drugs Target Of Moss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Frank E. Moss today demanded the Food and Drug Administration explain why it has not acted to end the use in government hospitals of some drugs ruled dangerous and ineffective.

In a letter to FDA Commissioner Herbert L. Ley Jr., the Utah Democrat said testimony before his consumer subcommittee indicated at least four drugs ruled ineffective or unsafe more than a year ago are still being stocked at Bethesda Naval and Walter Reed Army hospitals.

Moss wrote Ley after Theodore Cron, president of the American Patients Association, testified Monday the Bethesda hospital still stocks three drugs ordered off the market by the FDA and that Walter Reed has one such drug available.

But an FDA spokesman told a newsmen Thursday all government hospitals had been told of drug safety rulings by the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council.

But he said the FDA had no power to order a government hospital or another agency to stop using a drug.

Asked if the FDA had even suggested government installations stop using a certain drug, the spokesman said:

"No. And we haven't asked them to Conga either."

"We have made all the information available and that's all we can do," the spokesman said.

Cron said Bethesda was still stocking the drug Panalba. The NAS has said Panalba is a combination of two antibiotics which is no more effective than one of its components alone.

The FDA has ordered the drug off the market but the Upjohn Co. of Kalamazoo, Mich., has so far been successful in blocking the action in court.

Injunction KO'd

LANSING (AP) — Circuit Judge Marvin J. Salmon has partially lifted a temporary injunction forbidding Holiday Magic, Inc., a California cosmetics firm, from doing business in Michigan.

The temporary injunction had been obtained by Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley.

Kelley termed the firm's activities "a pyramid franchise operation" and said it violated the Michigan lottery, deceptive advertising, general corporation and uniform securities laws, among others.

Welcome TMA

Trans-Michigan Airlines, a third-level airline ranking behind the "trunk" lines like United Airlines and the "regional" carriers like North Central, started service to the Upper Peninsula through airports at Escanaba and Marquette Monday.

The initial flights carried local leaders — like politicians, representatives of Chambers of Commerce, industrial officials and members of the news media — to Lansing for an inaugural luncheon, one of several Trans-Michigan has hosted since it started business in April. There were kind words spoken at the luncheon for TMA, but the "sales job" came in the flight from the Upper Peninsula to Lansing.

Skies were overcast, even soupy near Lansing, yet the flights went smoothly. Taking off at 12:04 p. m. from Escanaba, the first plane touched down at Capitol City Airport at 1:12 p. m., less than 70 minutes from takeoff. There was no stop at Traverse City Tuesday as there might be on regularly scheduled runs, but even with a brief touchdown at Traverse City en route the travel time from Escanaba will only be about an hour and a half. Flight time to Detroit Metropolitan Airport will be about a half hour longer.

Aside from the enjoyable flight, two things emerged from the day in the sky and the Lansing luncheon:

● Although Trans-Michigan claims otherwise, it will be in some degree of competition with North Central for Upper Peninsula business, and

● The airline realizes it won't be easy to make a profit out of the U. P., but it's perfectly willing to give it the old college try.

J. Tom Brophy, airlines vice president who served as an informal master of ceremonies at the luncheon program, said that Trans-Michigan does not intend to compete with North Central, but in the same breath started the ball rolling to sell Detroit — via Trans-Michigan flights — as the answer to lengthy delays at O'Hare Field in Chicago. Upper Peninsula people are going to have to reorient their thinking toward Detroit, he said, indicating that Trans-Michigan now would be able to provide the quick direct service to Detroit which has previously been lacking.

Brophy also said that Trans-Michigan doesn't expect to "make a million" flying into the Upper Peninsula, in fact doesn't expect to "make a dollar" the first year. But he did say that he hoped the people present would help the airline bring its passenger loads up to profit-making levels.

While Trans-Michigan obviously could not continue to serve Escanaba and Marquette forever without some return for their trouble, it's encouraging that the company is willing to start service without a pre-made market.

Harold Vanlerberghe, a member of the Delta County Board of Supervisors and one who has done much to boost air progress in the community, made an astute comment.

Vanlerberghe said that it's great to see a company come into the area without a proven market, but with faith enough in the growth potential of the U. P. and in the quality of its service to be willing to try to develop it. He said in other situations, companies have responded "show us the market and we'll provide the service."

Trans-Michigan's new Beechcraft 99 Jet-prop doesn't quite measure up to the DC-9s of North Central now flying in the U. P., but there certainly was nothing wrong with the airplanes or the professionalism displayed by their pilots Tuesday. The Upper Peninsula should welcome TMA. It's great to be a two airline city again. Let's hope we stay that way.

The Grape Facts

California State Sen. John L. Harmer is somewhat like Sergeant Friday, he just wants the facts.

The senator was curious about the truth of the matter in the four-year long violence-packed campaign to unionize grape pickers in the state. He decided that he could find out the real story only if he could observe the situation first hand and undetected.

Disguising himself in typical workers' clothes, Sen. Harmer got hired as a picker. For four days he picked grapes. He slept, ate and worked under the same conditions as the other field hands.

Harmer concludes that "it was hard work, and I am stiff and sore, but I felt I had proved my point" which is that the pickers are not oppressed, as the union organizers claim.

Harmer says he could send his own son out in the fields "to do as I have done, and I could feel perfectly assured that he would be eating and sleeping in comfortable conditions and earning good money ($120 for a 40-hour week)."

He put his finger on the reason that union organizers are conducting secondary boycotts by trying to force stores not to sell grapes. The unions have failed to convince the workers themselves of any benefit in joining since they can earn considerably better pay than farm hands in other states.

Pickers, says Harmer, "fear the union, because the workers that they know who are employed by growers who have signed with the unions are extremely unhappy. The workers despise the union organization because of the violence and heartless desecration of the workers' personal property — primarily automobiles — by the union people." The unions are trying to convince the workers in order to force them to join an organization they don't like.

The workers need public support in their determined stand against union coercion. The last thing they need is to ignore the boycotts and eat more grapes.

Weicker's Victory Ends Negro Removal

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Idea do have consequences. In the golden days of John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson it was more than your life was worth to criticize urban renewal. Nobody in power paid any attention to the charge, thoroughly documented by Professor Martin Anderson of Columbia University, that two decades of urban renewal had actually decreased the number of housing units available to the poor. It was considered an inane part of the "white backlash" to suggest that urban renewal was, indeed, Negro removal.

Among the few legislators who came in due time to take Martin Anderson's figures seriously was Lowell P. Weicker, Jr., a freshman Republican Congressman from the Fourth Connecticut District. Weicker had noticed that mayors in his home state supported the bulldozing of slum property for strictly financial reasons: If you could replace riotous tenements with new high-rise middle class apartment houses, the resulting increase in the grand list brought more taxes into the City Hall coffers. Lacking any particular political clout, the Negroes who were forced to double up in the remaining shums as they were bulldozed out of their rookeries had to take it and like it.

Weicker also noticed that the city mayors had habitually tried to shift the blame for urban congestion to the suburbs, which were duly chastised by many a self-righteous "urbanologist" for not providing housing for the poor who had been thrown out of their central city homes. The critical swipes at the suburbs seemed to Weicker to consist of one part bad conscience and one part sour grapes. Even in unpopulated suburban areas land prices were too high to accommodate the poorer refugees. Moreover, shifting the poor to the suburbs would have been the final straw for the near-bankrupt passenger railroads, which cannot even now provide the services needed to get our existing commuter population into town.

Putting everything together, Congressman Weicker offered an amendment to the Housing and Urban Development bill which was about to reach the floor of the House of Representatives. The Weicker amendment stipulated that if any existing housing units in an urban renewal area are to be demolished, the redevelopment plan must include provisions to provide substitute housing on a "unit for unit" basis.

Surprised by Weicker's freshman temerity, and lacking any word from the White House, the opposition rallied to kill the amendment by a fifty to forty-eight vote. It looked as if Weicker's attempt to prove to the urban poor that "cities are for people" had been sidetracked for the duration of the ninety-first Congress.

Then a strange thing happened. After the House had recessed upon the completion of the adverse vote on the "one-for-one" idea, some of the Democrats came up to Republican Weicker to say they had had second thoughts about his amendment. The news resounded through to the Republican Minority Leader, Gerald Ford, and a move to recommend the bill followed. The powerful committee leadership which had killed Weicker's idea the first time around suddenly discovered it didn't have the votes to sidetrack it a second time. In a new vote, Weicker was upheld, 116 to 82.

In Weicker's home state of Connecticut the victory has had swift impact. No freshman within memory has ever had such an effect on Congress in his first year in office. The result is that Lowell Weicker is now being acclaimed in some quarters as a possible candidate for Governor or U. S. Senator.

Where There's Hope There Is Millions

By HAL BOTTLE

NEW YORK (AP) — When a man has earned so many millions that other people can only guess at their number, he sometimes turns to simple pleasures for enjoyment.

Bob Hope, one of the wealthiest entertainers in history, gets a kick out of the fact that he has a "pretty big" bedroom.

"I like to put in it while I'm thinking and working," he explained.

Top Immigrant Born Leslie Townes Hope in England, Bob came to this country at the age of 4 and has emerged as one of its most lauded and successful immigrants.

At 65, Hope, whose latest television special, "Roberta," will be aired over the NBC network Thursday evening, Nov. 6, is currently enjoying the highest ratings of his career and keeps as busy as ever.

Bob, then a young vaudeville comedian, made his first big hit on Broadway in "Roberta" when the musical first appeared there in 1933.

Looking back at his fabulous record—and at his present bank account — many people wonder why Bob keeps up his frantic performing pace.

For in the last 45 years he has:

Traveled six million miles. Appeared in five Broadway shows, more than 50 films, 225 television shows and 1,148 radio shows.

Given hundreds of benefit shows in hospitals, on college campuses, and at military service camps.

Raised millions of dollars for charitable and philanthropic causes.

Received more than 800 awards, citations and decorations, including 10 honorary university degrees.

Kept No Mystery

But it's no mystery to Bob himself why he maintains his quip-a-second routine.

"Working keeps your mental apparatus in shape and your adrenal pumping," he said. "As long as I'm healthy, nothing will ever keep me from working."

"If I ever quit, I'd find myself out of condition. Besides, I get more fun out of achievement than I do out of anything else in life."

Bob still works as conscientiously at every new production as if it were his first one, but he says he has slowed up on his social life since suffering an attack of high blood pressure a few years ago.

"I play golf as much as I can and try to get in an hour's nap every day," he said.

Takes Rap At TV

Asked what debuts most people in American life today, Bob grinned and replied:

A sometime maverick when it comes to following the "party line," Weicker has opposed the White House on a couple of things. He voted against extension of the ten per cent surtax, and he has been against the anti-ballistic missile. But the White House has not tried to discipline him. Possibly, with Professor Martin Anderson, the original critic of "federal bulldozing," sitting in on White House urban renewal discussions, the Administration is happy to see Weicker performing as his own man.

"Television. It has replaced conversation, ambition and good times. People get stuck in front of the set, fasten their seat belts, and watch everything. It's some habit, I want to tell you."

Here are Bob's likes:

"Midnight, because I'm a night crawler—working alone in my office at night—lamb in mint sauce, lemon pie and chicken hash—pastel colors—golf, football, baseball and fishing for salmon—most popular music and popular novels—collecting money and old theater memorabilia—most kinds of people—turning on the light of memory by talking with guys who remember old-time acts."

Hope's Dislikes

Here are his dislikes:

"Inattentive audiences, they bug me—people who bowl out servants—radishes and cucumbers—the smell of wire burning and the sound of air conditioners—Marlins, because they're like drinking out of a cigarette lighter—loud, nervous women who attract attention by yelling."

If he were to choose his own epitaph, Bob says it would be this:

"One moment, please!"

Recreation Fund Program Eyed

LANING (AP) — State funding to develop 3,000 acres of the Fort Custer reservation, near Battle Creek, as a recreation area is being urged by Rep. Wayne Sackett, R-Portage.

Sackett, a director of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, said the Department of Natural Resources has submitted plans for development of the area through a bonding program.

"I am sympathetic with the economic loss that may occur in the Battle Creek area by the closing of the facility, but I feel that this beautiful spot can be developed into such a fine recreation area that the loss will be only temporary," Sackett said.

Sackett said the 3,000 acres represents only about 20 per cent of the total land available. He added he has hopes of expanding the recreation project in the future.

The Department of Natural Resources, he said, would like to develop the area for swimming and picnicking, which would require better roads and parking and sanitary facilities.

He said he has written William Milliken to the effect of his support of the proposed bonding program.

Nine per cent of the Nation's manufacturing labor force works in the forest products industry.

Unusual Marriage?

By R. JAY MCKINLEY

Dear Ann Landers, I don't know for sure if the fashion who pointed to me as it was really possible for two women to marry, the also asked where to look for a home to buy in the Chicago area. You told her you knew of no place where members of the same sex could be married and you added in your customary precious manner, "Look for a home anywhere you please, but one thing is certain, it doesn't need to be near a school."

You could be wrong. Twenty years ago I began an unconventional relationship with a charming and fine woman with whom I worked. (Yes, I am a woman, also.) During these years we have raised eight wonderful children — her two nephews, her cousin's illegitimate child, my two nephews and the three orphaned children of a neighbor. We bought near a school. No signature will accompany this letter. Society isn't ready yet. — In Hiding

Dear I. H.: Sorry if you felt I was flip. Furthermore, I was not properly informed of the latest "happening."

I have a clipping from a London newspaper which reports that two males were married by a Roman Catholic priest in Rotterdam, Holland. The ceremony was held in private with members of both families present. Dutch Roman Catholics have long been among the most fervent members of their faith, but the Bishop heading the diocese said, "This was going too far." The priest who performed the ceremony will probably be censured.

Opening lead — six of diamonds.

It is hard to exaggerate the importance of thorough planning. Too often a declarer will discover, after racing through the first two or three tricks, that he has done himself irreparable harm by having earlier failed to plan the play of the hand down to the end.

Consider this deal, where many declarers would go down at three notrump. Let's see how and why this happens.

West leads a diamond and South wins East's ten with the jack. He plays two rounds of spades, but East, observing West's high-low, does not take the ace because he knows that South has a third spade.

That is the end of the road for declarer. He takes two tricks in each suit and finishes down one.

Superficially, South does not seem to have done anything wrong and he may be inclined to attribute his defeat to either very good defense or to very bad luck in finding East with three spades to the ace.

But, actually, South is at fault for having failed to plan the play in its entirety, and he has no one to blame but himself for the result.

The fault lies in South's play to the first trick. He should win the ten of diamonds with the ace, not the jack. He should not stake his all on driving out the ace on the first or second spade lead.

Declarer should assume that the six is West's fourth-best diamond. Once East produces the ten, West becomes masked with the king (as well as the 9-7).

By winning with the ace and forcing out the ace of spades, South assures himself of a later entry to dummy's queen of diamonds to cash the remaining spades. He must be careful to avoid the built-in pitfall of winning the opening lead with the jack of diamonds.

It pays to plan the play!

Military Fund Bill Derailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Efforts to smooth out differences in Senate and House versions of the $20 billion military spending bill are stalled on a Senate-ordered provision to limit independent defense research.

Because of the snag, involving conflicting sets of figures supplied Congress by the Pentagon, the Senate-Senate conference committee isn't expected to have a compromise ready for another 10 days.

The bill was passed in slightly different versions by each house and includes, among other things, authorization for President Nixon's Safeguard antiballistic missile system.

Sen. John C. Stennis, chairman of the Senate Armed Forces Committee which originally drew up the bill, said the Pentagon has revised its estimates of how much should be spent for military research by defense contractors.

First the Defense Department said it would need $383 million for independent research, then last week upped the figure to $720 million, the Mississippi Democrat said.

The Senate had approved an amendment by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to limit independent research spending to $400 million, a 30 per cent cut in the original figure.

Stennis said both defense contractors and the Pentagon now are actively lobbying for removal of the Proxmire amendment by the conference committee.

Scientists Find Added Harm In Cigarettes

CHICAGO (AP) — Three Danish scientists reported today evidence that carbon monoxide from cigarette smoke may contribute to development of diseased arteries in smokers.

They connected it specifically to atherosclerosis, a disease characterized by the accumulation of fats in the walls of the larger arteries.

This condition is related to the better-known arteriosclerosis and is held responsible for most heart attacks and strokes and some other disabilities related to the circulatory system.

Carbon monoxide is a toxic gas formed by incomplete combustion of a carbon-based fuel. It is found, for example, in automobile exhaust.

The scientists, Drs. Poul Astrup, Knud Kjeldsen and John Wamstrup of the University of Copenhagen, presented their findings at the second International Symposium on Atherosclerosis.

The Danes' joint paper at the symposium reported experiments with rabbits which were fed high cholesterol-saturated fat—and normal diets in atmospheres containing carbon monoxide and various oxygen concentrations.

They found that cholesterol deposits in heart and aorta tissue of the rabbits exposed to carbon monoxide was 2.5 times greater than that in rabbits fed cholesterol but living in a normal atmosphere.

The rabbits exposed to carbon monoxide also showed marked increases in carboxyhemoglobin concentrations in their blood. Carboxyhemoglobin is a molecule made up of carbon monoxide bound to hemoglobin, a component of red blood cells.

Ordinarily, hemoglobin transports oxygen from the lungs to body tissues in the blood, but in combination with carbon monoxide it delivers no oxygen and thus acts to asphyxiate the tissue.

The scientists said the concentrations of this molecule in the rabbits is similar to that found in heavy smokers.

Need Hard Sell For Haynsworth Approval: Long

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Russell Long, D-La., says only a hard sell by President Nixon can save Supreme Court nominee Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. from Senate rejection.

Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., says Nixon is playing a "forward fumble" strategy and doesn't really care if Haynsworth is nominated or not.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, a close Nixon advisor, says the President is standing firm on his choice and contends the odds against the South Carolina judge aren't as close as some predict.

And Sen. Robert P. Griffin has recounted how he presented his opposition to Haynsworth to the President and said the judge should withdraw "in his interest and that of the court and the President."

SDS Program Ruled Failure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ex-forts by the Students for a Democratic Society groups to enlist Midwest high school students in a "worldwide war against U.S. imperialism" have ended in an almost total failure, Congress has been told.

The high school students wanted no part of the SDS tactics, witnesses after witnesses told the House Committee on Internal Security, and in at least two cases got downright hostile.

A fist-throwing brawl ended a series of meetings in Columbus, Ohio, during which, two high school boys testified, members of the radical organization urged them to "kill pigs," burn down a department store and join in "a big revolution" with the Negro poor.

In Pittsburgh, high school students grabbed and ripped to shreds a Viet Cong flag during a melee with nearly 50 SDS Weatherman girls—some of whom stormed the school here-breasted.

The drive to radicalize high school students was described in a filmed interview subpoenaed and shown at the House committee's closing session last Thursday.

Everyone seems to be dazzled by brightness these days. Customers, salesmen, retailers, even some manufacturers have gotten the idea that the brightest color picture is the best color picture.

Not so. It's contrast that counts. Because it's contrast that makes each color stand out more clearly, and more sharply. Even with all your room lights on. After all, what good is a bright picture if it falls apart.

That's why we didn't try to make our new color bright 85" tube the brightest. We made it with 30% more contrast instead. We added a new red phosphor, an improved blue phosphor, a new green activator, and a third more brightness. Now we're sharper than ever. And sharper than anyone else.

Actually, Sylvania could give you the brightest color tube any time we wanted to. (Sylvania has led the way, time and again, in picture tube brightness.) All we'd have to do is change our tinted face plate for a regular one. But then we'd lose those blacker blacks we worked so hard to get. And we'd lose sharpness. Which we just won't do.

Old City Church Razed By Fire

DETROIT (AP) — Fire destroyed a block-long, 87-year-old former Catholic convent and orphanage, a Detroit East Side landmark, Monday.

Five firemen were killed by billowing smoke and suffered minor burns before being rescued by others among nearly 200 firefighters called in to fight the blaze. The five were treated and released.

There were no other injuries reported.

Most of the building, a former Felician academy at Canfield and St. Aubin, had not been used for years, but parts were occupied by the archdiocesan poverty program—which itself was in the process of moving out.

The Rev. Kevin P. O'Brien, program director, said about 65 employees, children and parents were inside when the fire broke out, but all were shepherded outside safely.

Yippie March Fails To Get Solid Backing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of the massive antiwar demonstration planned for Nov. 15 have turned their backs on a Yippie-sponsored march on the Justice Department that same day.

Not only won't the leaders of the New Mobilization Committee endorse the Yippie action, they decided against mentioning it at a rally capping the antiwar march.

The rally is expected to end in late afternoon. The Yippie march, designed to protest the federal conspiracy trial now in progress in Chicago, is expected to begin shortly after the rally ends.

March leaders say they expect a half million people to join in the antiwar protest.

"When it ends, we will tell our people to board their buses and go home," said Ted Johnson, a spokesman for the New Mobilization.

The Yippie action, he said, "is not a sponsored action by the New Mobilization; neither does the New Mobilization take any responsibility for it, nor will it urge people to participate in it."

The decision to avoid endorsement of the Justice Department action came at a stormy week-end meeting at Chicago. There, the tensions besetting the uneasy coalition of radicals and moderates united against the war, bubbled to the surface. The Yippies, including Abbie Hoffman and Jerry Rubin, planned the Justice Department action to focus on the Chicago conspiracy trial stemming from disorders during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Both Hoffman and Rubin are defendants in the trial, along with six others, including David Dellinger, national co-chairman of the New Mobilization.

Radical elements, including factions within the Students for a Democratic Society, believe that by focusing on the conspiracy trial as well as directly on the war, they can put a more radical stamp on the demonstrations.

New Mobilization leaders want to keep the focus directly on the war and are afraid that any departure from a controlled, disciplined and peaceful march could seriously damage the peace movement.

State Highway Deaths Reach Total Of 2,014

EAST LANSING (AP)—October traffic deaths, totaling some 215, raised the count for the first 10 months of 1968 to 2,014—four per cent more than the total for the same period last year, report the Michigan State Police. The October fatalities, police say, were 12 per cent below the all-time high of 246 set in October 1965.

DR. NORMAN R. Thompson, professor of crop science at Michigan State University, will be the main speaker at the Upper Peninsula Potato Show annual banquet, Nov. 8, at Ishpeming's Mather Inn. He will give a slide presentation on potato production in Europe. Banquet tickets can be obtained at the Co-operative Extension offices in Delta, Dickinson, Marquette, Iron and Houghton counties and from the Ishpeming Chamber of Commerce.

No-Strike Plan Approved By Police Group

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Representatives meeting here to organize a new national union of police have adopted a no-strike clause as part of a proposed constitution.

A goal of the group would be national legislation requiring mandatory arbitration between governmental agencies and police on issues of pay and working conditions.

"This is 1968, not 1919," said John T. Canessa of New York City, temporary chairman. "Only through organization at the national level can the policeman improve his lot."

Approved Sunday by representatives of police departments in 14 U.S. cities, the provision to prohibit strikes was called for by the AFL-CIO with which the proposed union would be affiliated.

The new organization would be known as the International Brotherhood of Police Officers.

Canada Asked To Limit Oil Imports To U.S.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Independent oil operators plan to renew a request that the federal government ask Canada to abide by an agreement to limit the amount of oil imported to the United States.

The independents also say the United States is moving toward a severe natural gas supply shortage.

Policy committees debated the problems Sunday while preparing recommendations to submit at Tuesday's 40th meeting of the Independent Petroleum Association of America.

The natural gas committee is expected to renew its plea for congressional legislation clarifying the authority of the Federal Power Commission to regulate producers who sell gas into interstate commerce.

An imports subcommittee left no doubt it will recommend that Canada be asked to limit its exports to the United States to 500,000 barrels a day.

EMU May Kyo Student Ruling On Newspaper

YPSILANTI (AP) — An Eastern Michigan University official says a student court decision may be overruled in order to discipline 13 students charged with distributing an allegedly "defamatory" and unauthorized newspaper on the campus.

"We may be forced to reverse or revise the student court," said Dr. Thomas Aceto, dean of students. "It is obvious that these students who have been charged were in violation of university rules."

On Saturday, the seven-member student court recommended that the administration drop charges against the editor of the publication, Frank Michels. They also said it would take the same action for the other 12 students in a hearing Tuesday.

The newspaper, The Second Coming, was first published in early October and circulated on campus. A second issue, however, was circulated without university approval.

The university officials were angered by a back-page article which asked students to match the faces of the university's homecoming candidates with pictures of bodies.

The article reportedly said jokingly that any student able to match the faces and figures would get the chance to make love to the homecoming queen in "front of national television cameras."

The students include Thomas Moors, student body president.

AEC Official Warns Against Troublemakers

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Atomic Energy Commission member says public alarm over environmental side effects of nuclear-powered electric plants is caused in some cases by "professional stirrer uppers."

Commissioner James T. Ramey made the statement last week before the Senate - House Atomic Energy Committee. The committee has scheduled another round of hearings to begin today.

Ramey mentioned no names, but said he spoke of "gentlemen from paper conservation organizations you can't hardly find an address for, representatives from the coal industry and younger scientists who always seem to be talking out of areas of their special competence."

He was joined by Commissioner Theobald J. Thompson in contending government controls over nuclear-powered plants are adequate to prevent damage to man, plants or wildlife through radiation or to fish through "thermal pollution" of water.

"We do not believe that the low levels of radioactivity released from nuclear power reactors will have a perceptible adverse effect on the environment," Thompson said.

Ramey said thermal pollution - the injection of hot water into lakes and streams - can be avoided by requiring such plants to build cooling towers or ponds.

Reduced Fare

DETROIT (AP) — Anyone producing a voter registration card could ride the city's buses today for a reduced fare of one dime.

The gimmick was being used to encourage voters to go to the polls in today's municipal election. DSR buses will drive with their lights on as an additional reminder, the city said.

The 20-cent out in bus fare was good during nonrush hours, between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Sandhill Crane Sanctuary Established Near Rudyard

A new sanctuary established by the Eastern Michigan Nature Association in the eastern U.P. is developing great appeal to local residents as well as to bird watchers from down below.

Some are having the thrill of seeing a Sandhill Crane for the very first time. Others are getting intimate glimpses of a bird that is extremely shy of man.

The new sanctuary is a half mile north off highway route 48 between Fibre and Dryburg in Chippewa County. It is one and a half miles east of Fibre and five miles southwest of Rudyard, on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Cartwright.

The Cartwrights have studied the cranes for many years. Their knowledge of the habits of the cranes, and feeding preferences, led to an early adoption of a field planted last spring for the cranes' benefit. From 2 to 24 cranes have been seen as early as 6:30 a.m. and as late as 7 p.m., feeding from 600 feet away down to as close as 100 feet away from a barn where observers may watch the birds.

The farm can be located by an information box placed by the roadside. Following the instructions contained in the box, one sneaks along a fence over to the barn door, and does all his bird watching from inside the barn. A ladder leads to a corner platform of hay bales that is second story height and provides a high viewpoint over the field. Peepholes facing two directions allow concealed viewing of the wary but unsuspecting birds.

The sanctuary, one of four already established by EMNA in the eastern part of the U.P., is for the use of the cranes during their fall migration season. More cranes are expected later, when larger flocksings will be preparing to migrate southward, and some cranes will be present until mid-October.

Sandhill Cranes are only occasionally seen throughout the U.P. in the summer as they nest in single pairs in isolated bogs and swamps far from human habitation. In the fall, however, they become gregarious and band together.

The Sandhill Crane is Michigan's largest bird, larger than a Great Blue Heron. The adult has a bare red "cap" extending through its eye. According to Chapman's "Birds of Eastern North America," the bird formerly bred over a large range but is now rare east of the Mississippi and rare or extinct as a breeder in the south half of its former range but still breeds locally in Wisconsin and Michigan northward. It winters from Texas and Louisiana south to Mexico.

Though not on the endangered species list, the Sandhill Crane nevertheless is a very unusual bird in Michigan, the migration through the state numbering in merely hundreds of birds. For years they have visited the Rudyard area as an ancestral home, feeding in migration in the summer and sand flying back to Michigan in trees. Their voices are loud, musical notes, and their food is small, such as frogs, and insects, but the favorite being earthworms, field peas, and wheat. They feed only on "down" grain.

The Eastern Michigan Nature Association was first organized in 1952 as the Michigan Nature Association, and still has its main mailing address at 124 Miller Street, Mount Clemens 48043. Since 1959 it has made its chief aim the preservation and protection of natural areas of Michigan, by purchasing and keeping them from development of roads, etc.

Yarick-Cross Recital Delights Concertgoers

By JANET MARTIN

A small, but appreciative crowd was present last evening at the William Oliver Memorial Auditorium for the thoroughly enjoyable concert presented by Soprano Doris Yarick and Bass - Baritone Richard Cross.

This was the third in a series of concerts presented under the sponsorship of the Delta County Community Concert Association.

Stage Freebies

And what a delightful evening it was! Take the lovely soprano voice of Miss Yarick, supported by brilliant high tones and sincere warmth and the rich, true baritone voice of Richard Cross, combined with expert stage presence and audience communication; and one has the makings of a most satisfying musical presentation.

The program began with five selections from "The Marriage of Figaro," by Wolfgang A. Mozart followed by four duets by Antonin Dvorak: "Hope," "The Apple," "Pain," and "The Wrath," and the scene and duet "Mira di corbe lagrime," from "Il Trovatore" by Giuseppe Verdi.

Solo Selections

After a brief intermission, Miss Yarick returned to the stage with four solo selections, "Go With Me From My Window," "Why So Pale and Wan?" "Ching-a-Ring-Chew," and the aria "Canzona di Doretta" from La Rondine.

Mr. Cross also presented several solo numbers including six short humorous French songs from La Bestiaire, "O Thou Willow Harvest Field," by Rachmaninoff and the satirical, "Song of the Flea," by Mousorgsky.

Measures For Lovers

Concluding the evening's program, Miss Yarick and Mr. Cross chose, "Melodies for Lovers," featuring, "Some Enchanted Evening," "Old Fashioned Wedding," "If I Loved You," and the lovely, "Wonderbar."

The Crosses (they are married in private life) returned to the stage for two encores.

It was a most enjoyable musical program, sparked by outstanding musical taste and appealing audience communication.

BISHOP, Calm. (AP) — California, land of sunshine, sand and surf, also has one cooler commodity — glaciers.

Not only that but last winter the glaciers grew, according to a U.S. Geological Survey report.

Orr Maintains Scoring Lead

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Orr, Boston's brilliant young playmaker, continues to pace the National Hockey League point parade, but the Detroit Red Wings, backed by Roy Edwards' standout goaltending, have supplanted the Bruins as team defensive leaders.

Orr, the 21-year-old defenseman who triggered Boston's attack, picked up four assists in three games last week for a total of 18 points, three more than veteran forward Ab McDonald of the St. Louis Blues.

Phil Goyette of the Blues is another point back and New York's Dave Balon is next with 15, according to official NHL figures released Monday.

While the Bruins were stunted for 7 goals, Edwards yielded five in two games and Roger Crozier, the Wings' alternate goalie, allowed one in his first start of the season. That gave the pair a combined goals-against average of 2.25 per game — best in the league.

Orr's 16 assists are tops in the playmaking department. Vic Hadfield of New York leads the goal scorers with eight after registering a hat trick against St. Louis Sunday night.

Jim Pappin of Chicago and Tom Folan of Minnesota are 1-0 in penalty minutes with 42 and 41, respectively.

Toledo Clinches Tangerine Berth

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Unbeaten Toledo has clinched a berth in the Dec. 26 Tangerine Bowl game by winning the Mid-American Conference.

Toledo downed Miami of Ohio 14-10 Saturday and has three non-league titles remaining. The bowl-bound football club is 7-0 for the season.

Opponent of the MAC title will be the winner of the Southern Conference. Davidson, Richmond and William and Mary each have one defeat in the SC, but Davidson has the inside track since it downed the other two front runners.

Richmond captured Ohio University in a 40-40 scoring draw in the 1968 Tangerine Bowl.

The Tangerine Bowl has been expanded to accommodate 20,000 fans.

Simple solution to rising car prices.

The Simple Machine.

Ford Maverick. Still $1995***

Our small car has scored a big success. And the reason is simple—solid value. Now, with other car prices going up all around it, Maverick is going its own Mavericky way. It still costs $1995* and that's still a small price to pay for a car that's simple to drive... simple to park... simple to service... simple to repair... and simple to own.

Simple to drive. Turn on the engine and you turn loose the power of 105 horses. Yet Maverick rivals the economy imports in gas mileage.

Simple to park. Maverick can U-turn in a tighter circle than the leading import. It can nip around corners and slide into tight parking spaces with amazing agility.

Simple to service. Maverick is easier and less expensive to maintain than an economy import. Maverick requires fewer oil changes, fewer chassis lubrications, too. You save time and money.

Simple to repair. The Maverick Owner's Manual has 24 pages of instruction for routine maintenance jobs you can do yourself like change spark plugs, adjust ignition timing, and more. Fenders and grille can be replaced in a matter of minutes.

Simple to own. The simple machine can start solving money problems for you right now. Check it out at your Ford Dealer's. The price that made it famous now makes it a better buy than ever.

First Five Grid Powers Preserve Perfect Marks

By The Associated Press
Ohio State, Texas, Tennessee, Arkansas and Penn State preserved their perfect records Saturday and thereby maintained their rankings in the weekly Associated Press college football poll.

The top-rated Buckeyes, 35-0 winners over Northwestern, received 90 of 35 first-place ballots from a nationwide committee of sports writers and broadcasters. They piled up 742 points, 60 more than runnerup Texas, which manhandled Southern Methodist 45-14. The Longhorns received five first-place votes.

Tennessee, which beat Georgia 17-0 and took over the lead in the Southeastern Conference, got two first-place votes and 590 points while Arkansas totaled 515 points. The top four teams have 6-0 records.

Penn State received the other first-place vote and 495 points after beating Boston College 38-16 for a 7-0 record. Southern California needed a last-minute touchdown to turn back California 14-0 but the Trojans held onto sixth place.

UCLA jumped from ninth to seventh after trouncing Washington 57-14 and Notre Dame also climbed two places with a 47-0 slaughter of Navy. Missouri rose from 14th to sixth after outgunning Kansas State 41-20 and Purdue, 15th a week ago, rounded out the new Top Ten. The Sooners leveled Illinois 40-32.

Auburn made the biggest jump, rising from 17th to 11th.

Michigan Cage League Disbands

SAULT STE. MARIE (AP)—The Michigan Collegiate Basketball Conference will disband at the end of this season, Ron Cooper, conference commissioner, announced Monday.

Cooper said major reasons for disbanding the conference were failure to attract other colleges as members and failure to expand into other sports.

Members are Northwood Institute of Midland, Michigan Lutheran of Detroit, Detroit College of Dearborn and Lake Superior State at Sault Ste. Marie. Cooper is athletic director at Lake Superior State. Mackinac College, was a member of the conference until it ended all competition and was put up for sale.

Members of the conference competed only in basketball.

after knocking Florida from the unbeaten ranks 30-12. The Tigers were followed by Louisiana State, Florida, Stanford, Kansas State, Georgia, Mississippi, Michigan, Air Force and Nebraska and Oklahoma tied for 20th.

Florida showed the biggest drop, falling from seventh to 18th. Ole Miss, Nebraska and Oklahoma were new names in the Top Twenty while Wyoming, which had been 18th and Colorado, 19th disappeared from the elite after losing efforts.

Nicklaus Wins Kaiser Tourney

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus had just finished pro's longest day, with a weary sigh on his lips, his third victory of the season in the bag and his eyes firmly fixed on a near-impossible goal.

The longest day was a 17-hour, 5-minute affair, a twice-delayed furman playoff that, for the first time in PGA history, stretched two days.

Big Jack, his awesome game once again in harness, defeated Billy Casper, George Archer and Don January in the precedent-setting playoff for the Kaiser International Open Golf title Monday and boosted his season earnings to $122,567.

The $28,000 first prize for his second victory in as many starts put him fourth on the money list, only $1,330 behind South Africa's Gary Player who is finished for the year.

But Nicklaus, the 29-year-old golden bear who ranks as golf's most feared competitor, is never satisfied with anything but first.

"You always want to be first in as many categories as you can," said Nicklaus, who hasn't finished lower than third on the money list since turning pro.

Frank Beard leads with about $177,000.

Nicklaus, who has made 946-000 in his last two starts, is favored in this week's $125,000 Hawaiian Open and also plans to play in the Heritage Classic later this year.

"I don't yet know whether I'll play in the Danny Thomas (the final tournament of the year) or not," he said. "It depends on my position on the money list. If I'm in a position to pass someone I'll probably do it."

There is a total $70,000 in the first-place money still up for grabs in the three remaining tournaments and Nicklaus would have to win at least two to take over the No. 1 spot, probably the most coveted position in the pro game.

He almost let Kaiser get away from him. He held a two-stroke lead going into the final round on the 6,849 yard par 72 Silverado Country Club course, expanded it to three shots at one point but had his troubles coming home and was tied at 273 by Archer, Casper and January.

The playoff began in the lengthening shadows Sunday on the par five 16th hole. January parred, but was eliminated when the other three ran in long birdie putts.

By that time it was too dark to continue and was held over until Monday scheduled at 9 a. m. but a heavy fog cover delayed it again for an hour.

Casper had a poor tee shot and was in a trap in two on the par four, 346-yard 17th hole and took a bogey. Archer reached the green in two but had a difficult 25 foot putt.

Nicklaus was down the middle and wedged to within 14 feet. Archer missed his putt and 17 hours after the playoff started—Jack made his for a bird.

"When you're in a playoff," Nicklaus said, "it just comes down to not making any mistakes."

He didn't.

Elliott To Speak At Grid Banquet

Chalmers (Bump) Elliott, former head football coach at the University of Michigan, will be the main speaker at tonight's Gladstone High School football banquet.

Elliott retired from college coaching last year to move into an administrative position in the Michigan athletic department.

The banquet, which gets underway at 6:30, is sponsored by the Gladstone Rotary Club for the purpose of honoring the Gladstone Braves' football team and the U. P. Coach of the Year. Since the 1959 Coach of the Year will not be selected until Saturday, the only award presented tonight will go to Jerry Covesore of Keweenaw High School, the 1958 Coach of the Year.

Faculty Game

A special basketball game between the Perkins faculty and the Rock Faculty will be played Saturday evening at 7 at the Rock gymnasium.

ALTIE TAYLOR (42), rookie Detroit Lion running back, gets no running room and is dropped for a two-yard loss in the first half of Sunday's game against the San Francisco 49ers. Coming in to make the stop is 49er linebacker Skip Vanberndt (52). The Lions won the game, 28-14. (AP Wirephoto)

Reed Outplays Alcindor As Knicks Upend Bucks

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Willis Reed wasn't the tallest man on the court Monday night, but he was the big reason the New York Knicks won their 11th game of the season.

Reed, who at 6-foot-10 gives away four inches to Milwaukee's Lew Alcindor, pumped in 35 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to lead the Knicks to a 108-98 National Basketball Association victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

It was the only NBA action Monday night. The New Orleans Bucs defeated the Washington Caps, 125-115, in the only American Basketball Association game on tap.

"I stunk," Alcindor said after the game. "I missed easy shots. It was like I wasn't even out there on the court."

The 7-foot-2 rookie failed to challenge Reed as the New Yorker moved outside for most of his field goals. Alcindor, on the other hand, scored only 17 points, his second lowest total of his short pro career, hitting only 7 of 20 shots from the field.

"Reed was standing out there with nobody on him," Alcindor said. Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello said Alcindor was supposed to be guarding Reed.

"He (Reed) used to be a forward," Costello said. "He can hit from the outside. You can't give him those shots."

"Tonight, Reed outplayed him," Costello said. "But we all have our bad nights. At the same time, we can't have too many bad nights with Alcindor and expect to win."

"To beat New York you've got to have losses, period. They've got great shooters," he said. Milwaukee and New York put on a dazzling defensive display for the first five minutes of the game with the Knicks on top, 9-0. Then Reed, aided by Bill Bradley, Dick Barnett and Dave DeBusschere, went to work.

At the first stop, New York led 34-23. Milwaukee's Bob Green, a second-round draft choice, made his NBA debut in the second period and spurred the Bucks to a 52-52 deadlock before the Knicks went into the locker room at halftime with a 56-52 advantage.

Green, who finished with 18 points, high for Milwaukee, connected on 7 of 7 from the floor and 4 of 4 from the free throw line. However, he received very little help.

The Bucks narrowed the gap to 66-56 with 3:50 remaining in the game before Reed scored six of New York's next eight points and salted away the victory.

"It was my fault more than anything else," Alcindor said of the defeat.

Iron Rangers Open Schedule

MARQUETTE — The Marquette Iron Rangers have signed the remaining "holdouts" and will swing into United States Hockey League action against the Sault Ste. Marie Canadians Friday night in the Memorial Gardens.

With Captain Barry Cook, Matt Oreskovich and Gerry Sullivan in the fold, in addition to Henry Ackervall, former Canadian Olympic skater, the Iron Rangers look like a good bet to repeat as USHL champions.

The team has been basking in nationwide publicity with the signing of Karen Koch as a spare netminder. The 18-year-old Northern Michigan University coed played in the intrasquad game recently and gave an impressive performance.

Brian Lunney appears a safe bet to start against the hard-skating Canadians, however, as Coach Leonard (Oakie) Brumm wants to get off to a flying start.

Rochester's Mustangs open the Iron Rangers' home season on Nov. 15 when the revamped Minnesota entry tries their luck on Palestra ice.

Brumm reports all players back from last year with the exception of Bud Williams who tried out for the Flint club and was later released.

According to reports out of Marquette, Steve Sopher looks faster than ever as does little Austin (Aussie) O'Neill, a hometown product up from the junior ranks.

Local fans are anxiously awaiting the invasion of the Green Bay Bobcats on Nov. 29. With Pete Buchmann again at the helm, the Cats are out to gain revenge for ending up second last year by a single game.

Last season was Green Bay's best effort against the Marquette squad. Upper Peninsula talent is noticeable on the Green Bay roster with seven players in uniform.

Spartan Coach Alters Lineup

EAST LANSING (AP) — A substitute quarterback with brief experience in only two games will lead the Michigan State football forces against the Purdue team built around versatile signal-caller Mike Phipps at Lafayette, Ind., Saturday.

Coach Duffy Daugherty announced he is shifting Bill Triplett, a junior and the regular starter, to a combination flanker-split end position after the 16-0 loss to Indiana.

Steve Piro, a sophomore from Iowa City, will be the new starting quarterback.

The homecoming crowd was booing the team Saturday. Daugherty apparently felt a lot of the jeers were directed at Triplett, who tried 11 pass tries without a completion.

"I told the squad I felt badly about Triplett being the scapegoat," said Daugherty. "Actually, he never wanted to be quarterback. But I had to put him there. I am tired of seeing him crucified."

Triplett has 30 completions in 58 attempts for 561 yards and five touchdowns this season. He also has thrown 10 interceptions. He had a 306 completion success this season against 522 as a sophomore.

Piro worked briefly in the Ohio State game but saw more action against Indiana. Otherwise, he went in only as a ballholder on kicks. He has nine completions in 19 throws for 89 yards with one interception and has yet to make a touchdown.

Tom Harp is in his fourth season as head football coach at Duke.

KING EDWARD

His go-get-'em play has made him the runnerup to retired former teammate Ted Lindsay in the penalty minutes department. Including eight this season, Howe's total stands at 1,565; Lindsay's at 1,808.

He shows little sign of aging although he says he's feeling it and has developed a bad habit.

"I'm doing too much stick-handling with one hand on the stick," he groaned, rubbing a left wrist in which he had arthritis.

In practice he uses a brace on the wrist and because that brace is stiff, he finds himself using only one hand. He doesn't use the brace in games, but still is prone to stick-handle with one hand.

Howe Gives Up Personal Glory

DETROIT (AP)—He wanted to help a teammate. That's why Gordie Howe, the National Hockey League's "Mr. Hockey" gave up a chance for more personal glory.

Howe, in 21 seasons as a Detroit Red Wings player, has a multitude of awards to his credit. One of the few records that has escaped him — a four-goal game—could have been his Sunday night in the Wings' 4-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Howe had collected the 19th hat trick of his career and the opportunity for a fourth goal arose in the final seconds of the contest. The Penguin net was unattended and Howe had the puck with a clear shot ahead.

But that's when his concern for teammate Alex Delvecchio made him pass up the chance. Delvecchio, who shared with ice with Howe for 19 seasons as a Red Wings player, hasn't scored a goal this year and has only seven assists.

"When I got the puck inside the blue line, I took a look out of the corner of my eye for Alex," Howe said. "He's looking for his first goal this season and it always gives a guy a lift to score a goal."

Howe said he tried to pass the puck to Delvecchio but it hit a Pittsburgh player at the blue line and bounced back.

Luckily, he said, it came back to him and he handed it off to Frank Mahovlich, who was farther up the ice and in a better position to score. As it turned out, Pittsburgh's Dean Prentice managed to get a deflecting stick in front of Mahovlich's shot.

The unselfish performance brought the Olympia stadium crowd of some 12,000 fans to their feet for a standing ovation.

At 41, Howe should be used to the adulation which generally goes to a sports star who's made a habit of breaking records.

He's rough, tough and rowdy on ice, but when the buzzer sounds, the soft-spoken Howe does a complete reversal and his humility and "nice guy" manner have won him the title of "a real gentleman."

Howe's career record of goals now totals 739, almost 200 ahead of the nearest NHL all-time goal-maker, the retired Maurice "Rocket" Richard of the Montreal Canadiens.

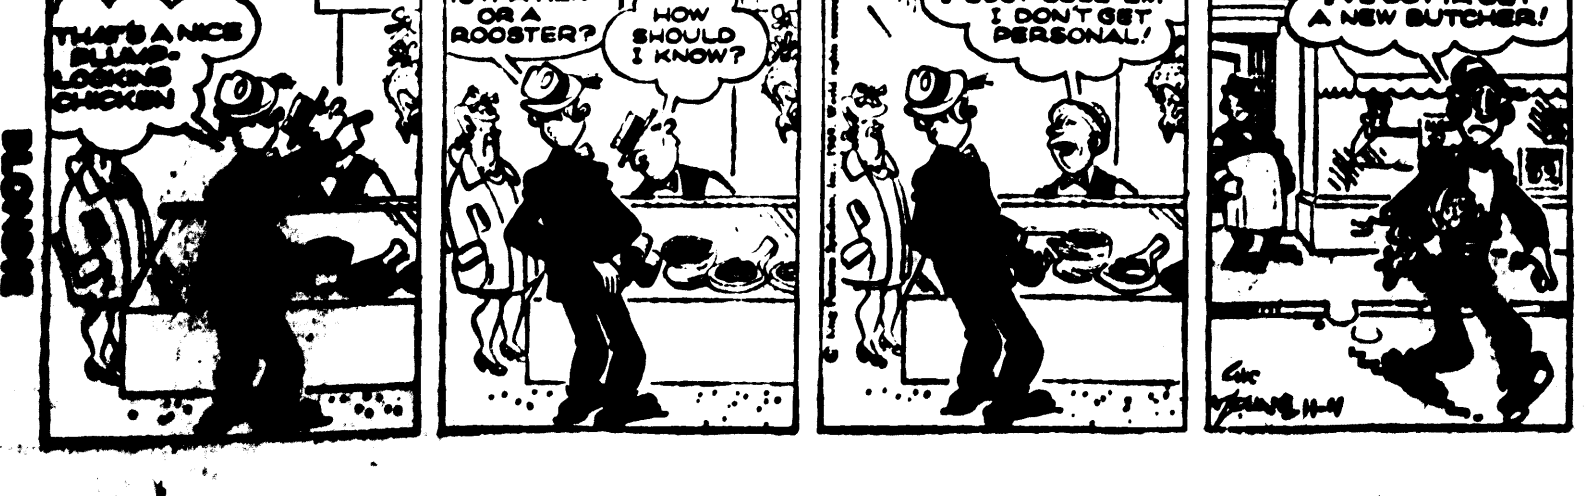

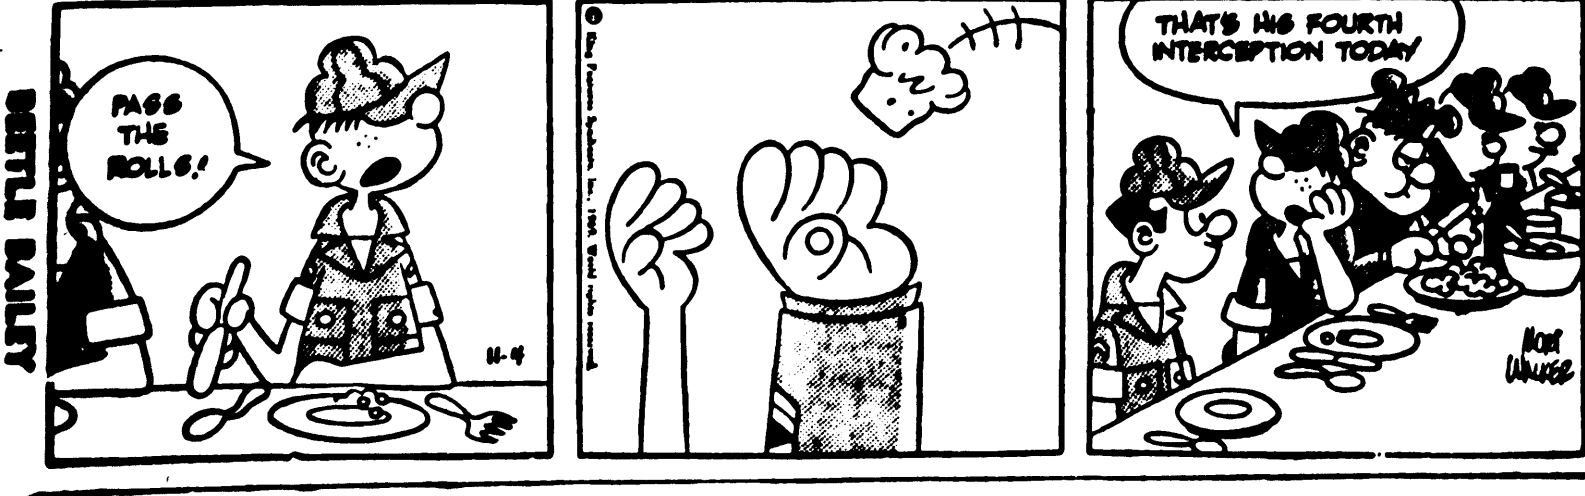

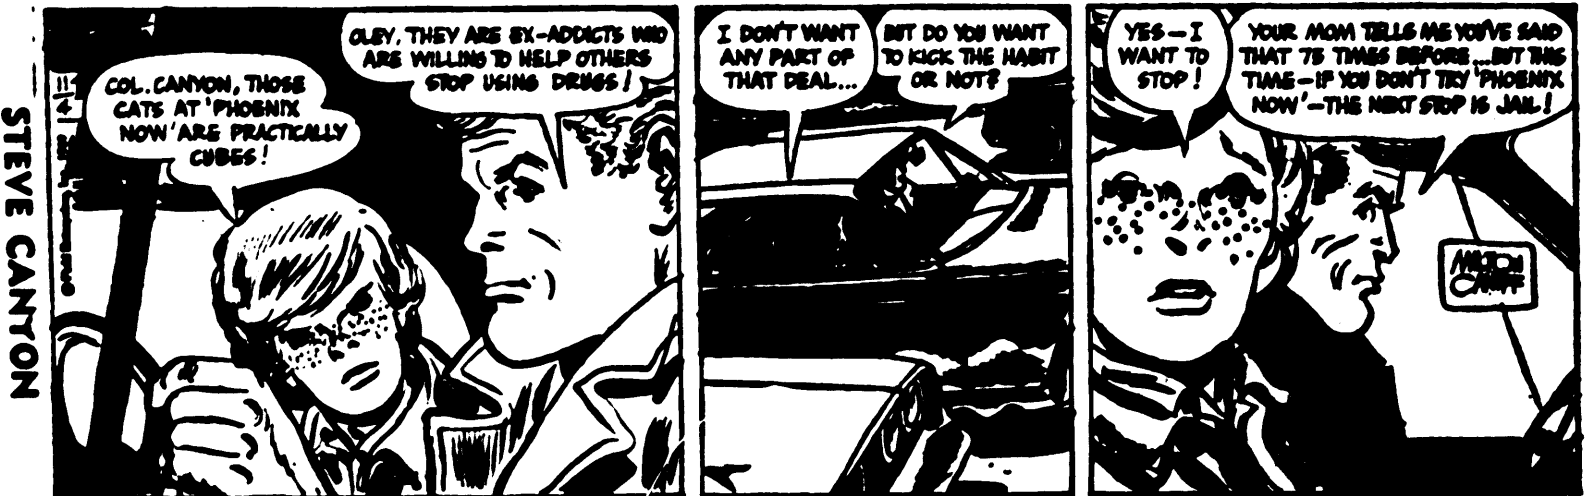

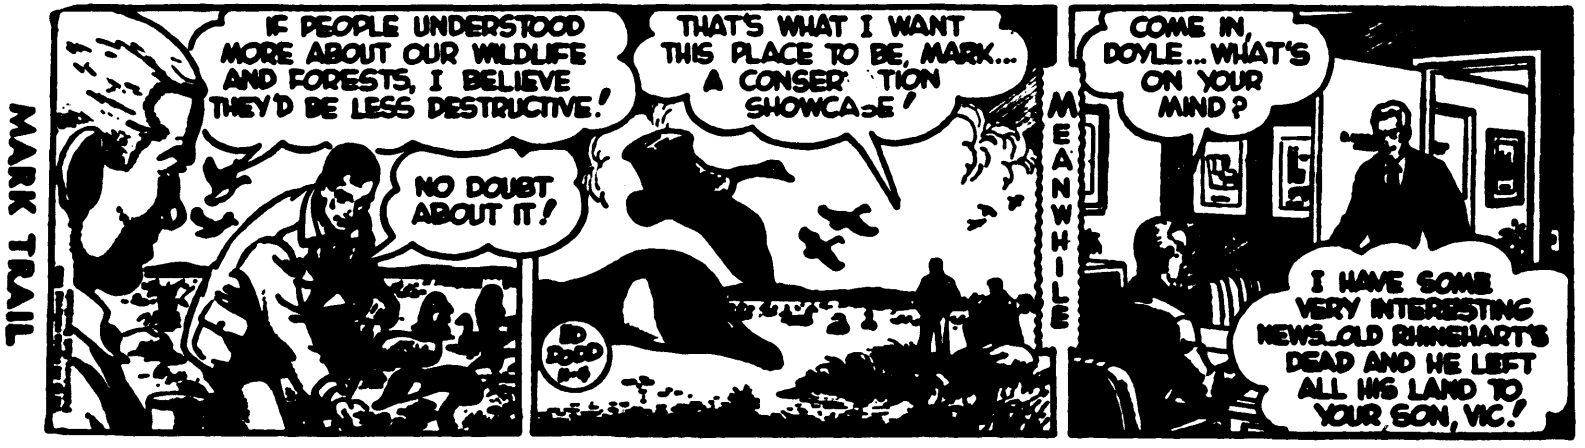

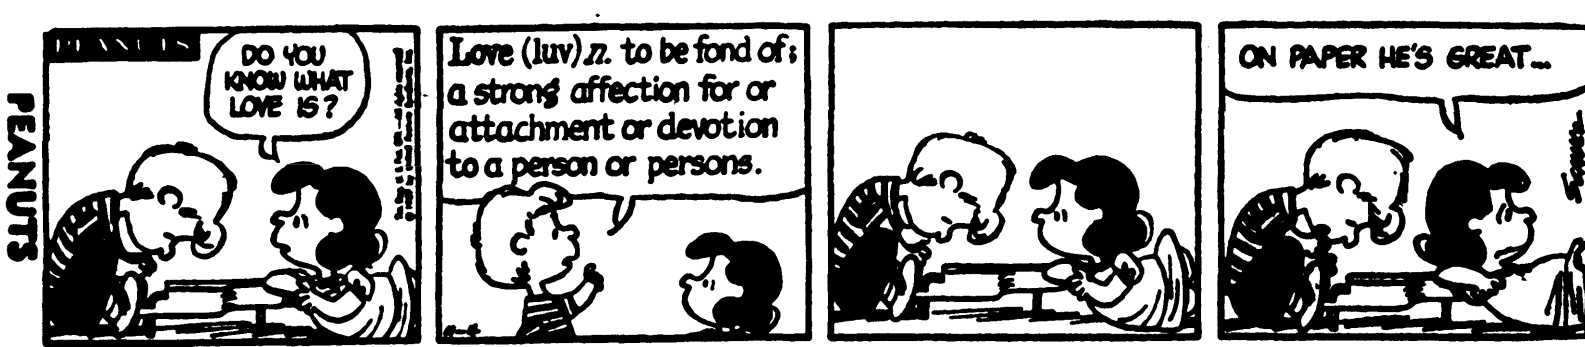

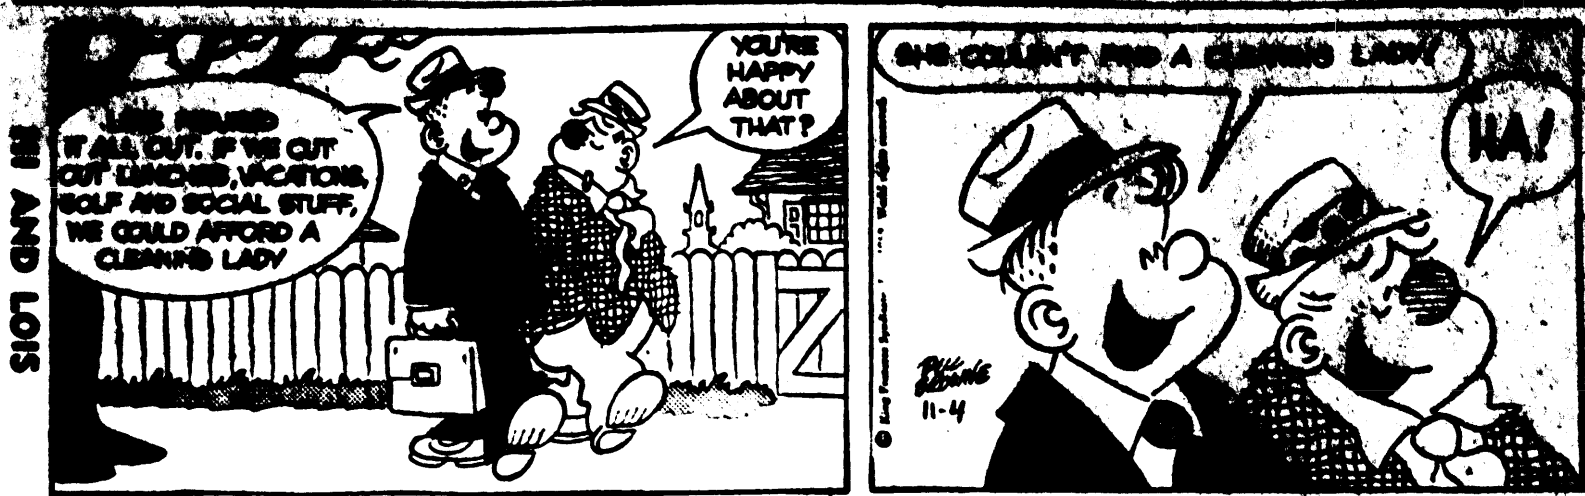

His go-get-'em play has made him the runnerup to retired former teammate Ted Lindsay in the penalty minutes department. Including eight this season, Howe's total stands at 1,565; Lindsay's at 1,808.

He shows little sign of aging although he says he's feeling it and has developed a bad habit.

"I'm doing too much stick-handling with one hand on the stick," he groaned, rubbing a left wrist in which he had arthritis.

In practice he uses a brace on the wrist and because that brace is stiff, he finds himself using only one hand. He doesn't use the brace in games, but still is prone to stick-handle with one hand.

National Guard Unit Helps Build Bridge

A new footbridge has been constructed across the Indian River through the cooperative efforts of the U.S. Forest Service and the Michigan National Guard. The footbridge is located at the Forest Service's Indian River Camp and picnic grounds along M-84, about ten miles north of Manistique. Purposely designed to accommodate foot traffic only, the bridge was constructed to serve hunters, fishermen and hikers in the area. Forest Service personnel felt that if vehicles, such as snowmobiles or trail bikes, were allowed to travel up and down the steep bank to use the bridge a very serious erosion problem would develop.

According to District Ranger Mel Goldie, many deer hunters hunt in the general area where the bridge was built. Some of them stay at a nearby resort, in the Indian River Campground, or in undeveloped camping areas located along the Jack Pine Trail.

During the spring and summer months, numerous trout fishermen enjoy trying their luck along this stretch of the Indian River. However, Goldie pointed out, there hasn't been a suitable crossing within several miles of the new bridge. Fishermen will now have the opportunity of fishing both sides of the stream.

Hunters will now be able to hunt the area immediately west of the river since the bridge will open up hundreds of additional acres of land for hunting.

Goldie said that although the Forest Service has been aware of the need for a bridge in this location for some time, funds were never available. There always seemed to be a project with a higher priority.

The local National Guard is an engineering unit specializing in bridge construction and were looking for a project to use some of the training they have been receiving. Hence the melding of forces with the Forest Service designing the structure and the National Guard providing technical supervision and manpower for the job.
